

Teasha Barth

Executive Assistant

Originally from the Pacific Northwest and raised in Alaska, Teasha Barth began her professional journey as a flight attendant, where she developed a passion for travel, service, and making meaningful connections with people from all walks of life.

She later settled in Virginia, where she spent many years building a strong career in local government. With nine years of experience in the Tax Assessor's Office—first as a Real Estate Assessor and later as the Personal Property Tax Director—Teasha developed deep expertise in public service, tax administration, and operational efficiency.

In 2023, she relocated to Johnston County, North Carolina, and is eager to get involved in the local community. Known for her ability to support executive-level functions with professionalism, warmth, and attention to detail, Teasha also brings event planning experience and a natural talent for creating quality connections.

Teasha is a proud mother of three and grandmother of four. In her free time, she and her husband enjoy discovering all that North Carolina has to offer—from scenic road trips to local events. Whether at work or in her community, Teasha values relationships and takes pride in bringing people together.
